OpenSource Advisors – Open-360 Research Services Supports Business Councils, Government Agencies, and Non-Profits Critical Insight

Needham, MA, August 2010 — OpenSource Advisors through its web-based solution (Open-360) is providing business councils, government organizations and non-profits insight to technology use around the globe. Executing the same best practices utilized for their commercial customers, OSA provides clear insight to technology trends and current usage across a wide spectrum of products and services.

The Open-360 platform and processes enables the capture of technology and business information for a wide range of software, services and industries including open source and third-party products providing information critical to making informed decisions. The accurate and real-time information is used by organizations to support strategic technology and business decisions. John Sebastian of USNIT says "The information we uncovered was striking and it allowed us to visualize future technology trends that were not previously clear to us". For more information, please visit www.open-360.com.

About OpenSource Advisors (OSA)
OpenSource Advisors is a business and technology services firm founded in 2004, specializing in business process engineering supported by enterprise centric open source strategy and solutions and the integration of advanced technologies. OSA enables clients to obtain measurable ROI through process change and leveraging scalable open solutions with existing enterprise applications. For more information, please visit www.opensourceadvisors.com